

AMBER Alerts

AMBER alerts are used by law enforcement to notify the public about missing children thought to have been abducted. AMBER Alerts are only used for the most serious child abduction cases, when authorities believe a child is in imminent danger of serious bodily injury or death. The goal of AMBER Alerts is to add millions of extra eyes and ears to watch, listen, and help in the safe return of the child and apprehension of the abductor.

How it works

Law enforcement officials issue AMBER Alerts with photos and information about missing children and possible abductors, along with contact numbers to report sightings or provide information. Alerts are sent to radio and television stations and cable TV outlets, which may use the Emergency Alert System to relay the information to local communities throughout the United States and its territories.

Law enforcement officials may also transmit AMBER Alerts using the Wireless Emergency Alert (WEA) System to the WEA-capable mobile devices of participating wireless carriers.

What you can do

If you see a child, adult or vehicle fitting an AMBER Alert description, immediately call the telephone number given in the AMBER Alert and provide authorities with as much information as possible.

If you believe a child is missing, you should contact local law enforcement immediately, then call the National Center for Missing & Exploited Children at 1-800-THE-LOST (1-800-843-5678). More information about available resources can be found at missingkids.org/MissingChild.

Consumer Help Center

For more information on consumer issues, visit the FCC's Consumer Help Center at www.fcc.gov/consumers.

Accessible formats

To request this article in an alternate format - braille, large print, Word or text document or audio - write or call us at the address or phone number at the bottom of the page, or send an email to fcc504@fcc.gov.

Last Reviewed 01/10/20

